WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 (WF).
—Senators George McGovern and Thomas Ragieton announced last night that Sen. Eagleton would give up the Democratic party's vice-presidential nomination to idvance the cause of party unity After a meeting of nearly two hours at the Capitol, they announced they had agreed that the need to unify the party was more important than keeping the Missouri senator on the ticket. Sen. McGovern said he had not determined who would replace Sen. Eagleton on the slate.

The ticket leader said late today that he would announce within "the next few days" his choice as a successor to Sen. Eagleton. In promising that the choice would be made soon, Sen. Mc-Govern simultaneously canceled a speech that he had scheduled for tonight at his Washington home, "major" statement which was to have been made available for live television coverage.

It was understood that the three higgest networks had balked at giving free prime time to the candidate for a speech on an unspecific topic. Sen. McGovern had said last night that its purpose was "to discuss events of the compaign to date."

The standard bearer's deputy press secretary, Kirby Jones, said that the subject of tonight's speech was to have been the vicepresidency, but the aide would petther confirm nor deny that the senator planned to announce his theory for a new No. 2 Inch Observers said at that point that it was unlikely that Sen, McGovern would tonight have reached a decision on-and adequately checked the background of a new running mate. Sen. McGovern himself had said last night, when disclosing Sen. Eagleton's resignation from

The check was made out by a Florida bank to Kenneth H. Dahlberg, the President's campaign finance chairman for the Midwest, Mr. Dahlberg said last night that, in early April, he turned the check over to "tha reasurer of the Committee [for the Re-election of the President] or to Maurice Stans himself."

Mr. Stans, formerly secretary of commerce under Mr. Nixon, is now the finance chief of the President's campaign.

Mr. Dahiberg said he did not have "the vaguest idea" how the check got into the account of tha real estate firm owned by Bernard L. Barker, one of the breakin suspects. Mr. Stans could not he reached for comment. Reached by telephone at his home in a Minneapolis suburb, Mr. Dahlberg explained the existence of the check in this way: "In the process of fund raising. I. had accumulated some cash ... I recall making a cash deposit while I was in Florida and getting a cashier's check made out to myself. I didn't want to carry all that cash into Washington.

Last IRA Barricades Fall; Dublin Premier Backs Move

BELFAST, Aug. 1 (AP).—A sullen peace descended on Northern Ireland today as troops smashed the last barricades ringing guerrilla strongholds and British administrator William Whitelaw moved to patch together a new political initiative.

The army said the province had its quietest day for months as members of the Irish Republican Army kept out of sight following the military invasion of their main redoubts in Belfast and Londonderry yesterday. Mr. Whitelaw's hones of fore-ing a peace between the North's feuding Protestant majority and Roman Catholic minority were boosted by an announcement from Irish Republic Premier Jack Lynch backing the military sweep, "provided tt saves

Mr. Lynch, speaking after an emergency exhinet meeting in Dublin to study the new situation in the North, urged immediate talks "to achieve a political solution." He also promised that his government would crack down on IRA men operating illegally in the Republic. Mr. Lynch said: "The people in bombers must be eliminated from the scene. They are polluting the atmosphere."

SAIGON, Aug. 1 (AP).—US. Navy planes bombed a shipyard in North Vietnam's main port of Haipbong, the U.S. command announced today, and President Nguyen Van Thicu of South Vietnam predicted the war could be over in six months if the air attacks continue.

The bombing of the Haiphong shinyard yesterday was its first the war, a spokesman said. Pilots from the carrier Saratoga reported leaving much of the North Vietnam's Foreign Min-

Weather Cuts Raids

Overcast skies reduced U.S. strikes over the North to slightly more than 200, the command sald. It reported that U.S. planes had hit targets including 8 bridges, 12 river craft, 13 storage areas and warehouses, fuel pipelines, 12 trucks, and missiles and artillery sites.

The administration, meanwhile, was still toying with compromise language to ward off passage of a Vietnam fund cutoff such as was tentatively approved on a bill last week, which was later killed. It appeared ready to throw its support to a proposal by Sen. George D. Aiken, R., Vt. The Aiken amendment, in effect, endorses the President's demand for an internationally supervised cease-fire, the release of all U.S. prisoners of war, and an accounting for those missing in action, as preconditions for a withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Vietnam.

The Aiken amendment does not contain a fund cutoff, but states that the withdrawal from Vietnam "shall be accomplished" four months after these preconditions are met. This is substantially different from the proposal that passed, 49 to 46, on the earlier bill, which merely requires release of U.S. prisoners without a cease-

McGovern Statement

In a statement yesterday, Sen. Sen, Eagleton disclosed that during their meeting at the Capitol, he had opened with what he called a 'lawyer-like' presentation of his case for remaining on the ticket. But, he said, Sen. McGovern disagreed with his conviction that the issue of Sen. Eagleton's health would subside in the campaign. Sen. Eagleton praised Sen, McGovern for his courteous treatment in the past few days and said that at no time had he felt "bamboozled" by Sen. Mc-Govern.

In recent days, McGovern aides reportedly had been trying to ease Sen. Eagleton off the ticket, convinced that his health record would drag the ticket down to defeat in November.

Sen. McGovern insisted that. he had created no "credibility gap by first ebdorsing Sen. Eagleton after the revelations and then expressing doubts about his effect on the election. "We didn't know the size of this thing as an issue. We didn't know the impact on the coun-

Poll, Before Eagleton Furor, Puts Nixon Far Ahead of McGovern

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 (Reuters).—President Nixon is leading Sen. George McGovern in the presidential race by 56 percent to 37 percent after making big gains among Roman Catholics and union members, according to the latest Gallup

The poll, taken after the Democratic National Convention last month, but before the furor surrounding Sen. Thomas Esgleton, showed President Nixon with a 15-point lead among Catholics, up from 4 points before the convention, and a 10-point lead among union members, compared to a deficit of 4 points previously.

It also showed the President gaining among the younger voters. From a 15-percent deficit, he was only 2 points behind among voters aged between 18 and 29.

Rut Sen. McGovern, the poll said, gained dramatically among nonwhites, with a lead of 74 points, against 35 points in an earlier poll.

The Democratic candidate also changed an 11-point deficit into a 15-point lead among poor voters.

Democratic Officials Praise Eagleton and His Withdrawo

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 (AP). -Leading Democrats gave Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D., Mo., warm commendations as his faltering candidacy flickered out. Some also hinted their relief that at least one uncertainty had

The tone was much the same in comments by other party leaders praising the Missouri senator's courage for pulling cut of the race rather than become an issue, a prospect presidential nominee George McGovern had feared.

Sentiment was more sharply divided as party leaders assessed the impact of Sen Eagleton's withdrawal on an already uphill campaign against an incumbent Republican president

But the party's more immediate consideration was to fill the vacancy. One of those mentioned as a potential replacement. former Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien, refused to discuss his prospects. Talks With McGovern

Thus, when the committee acts as a miniature convention, New York's 10 members would be entitled to cast 27.8 votes each for a total of 378, If only four members were present, each would cast 69.5 votes. So a state's failure to fill all its new committee seats would not decrease its total

As Mr. Califano reads the rules, there would be no need to postpone the special committee sesuntil the full 303-member group had been officially chosen, because the state chairmen and vice-chairmen, governors, congressional leaders and at-large members would not be entitled to vote on the question anyway.

Prosecution Rests in Trial Of Bremer

UPPER MARLEORO, Md., Aug. 1 (API.-The prosecution rested its case against Arthur Herman Bremer today with testimony from an experienced criminal psychiatrist that while Bremer was "mixed up." he was legally sane when Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and three other persons were wounded on May 15 at a Laurel, Md., shopping center.

"I formed an opinion that he was suffering from a mental he was a schizoid personality with some paranoid and psychopathic features," said Dr. Jonas Rappeport, the chief psychiatrist for Baltimore's courts. "I believe this disorder did not impair his ability to appreciate the criminality of his act or to conform his act to the law," Dr. Rappeport said, testifying in the language of the legal definition of sanity in Maryland. Dr. Rappeport was one of two prosecution psychiatrists who told the jury that they had examined the 21-year-old suspect and considered him legally re-sponsible for the shooting which left Gov. Wallace partially para-

ed assassmation.

The psychiatric testimony from the prosecution witnesses depicted Bremer as a lonely, distrustfearful person, afraid to relate to others and a young man who at one point in his life considered killing a large number of persons in Milwaukee and then committing suicide.

Earlier, an FBI technician testified that he could not prove by laboratory tests that bullets had been fired from the gun found near where Gov. Wallace The technician, Robert A. Fra-

He said there had been two partial prints on the weapon, but that they had been of "no value for identification." Mr. Williams said. there had been no other prints on the gum or on the cartridges

Mr. Anderson originally said he had located photocopies of records showing Sen. Eagleton had been arrested a half-dozen times in the 1960s for drunken or reckless driving. Later, he said he hadn't seen these records but had only been

"If there were photostats, I believe they were phony," he said, adding: "I have exhausted my investigative abilities."

He said it was "inexcusable" for him to have used the story. Sen. Eagleton, who resigned his vice-presidential candidacy at the insistence of Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern, wouldn't comment on whether the Anderson charge had played a part in his downfall.

Lawyers for Ellsberg Urge Rehnquist Not to Hear Appeal

By Fred P. Graham

-The tangled court proceedings in the Pentagon papers case were further complicated resterday when the defense sought to disqualify Justice William H. Rehnquist from taking part in the Supreme Court's consideration of the case.

Robert Galley, French Minister of Transport, and his chief side, Bernard Lathiers, Director of Civil Aviation, were asked why Air France had ordered fewer aircraft than BOAC and why it had taken so long to decide. He laid the delay to technical calculations that had to be made before Concorde's sponsors could guarantee a maximum payload with a safety margin of fuel left over for the Paris-New York flight, which requires more fuel than the New York-Paris trip.

Discussing the number of planes ordered, he said that BOAC, with regular service to Australia: and South Africa, needed more aircraft than did Air France.

At today's meeting of the min-isters, technical reports said that the Concorde program in France and Britain is proceeding satisfactorily. The next ministerial meeting will be in Paris on Sept.

Spassky adopted new playing tactics today. He got up from the table and went backstage after almost every move in the opening of the game. The world champion would return only after Fischer would make his move, sit briefly and make his own move, then go offstage again.

Spassky played more rapidly than Fischer, taking only 16 minutes for his first 10 moves, compered to the American's 40 minutes-10 of which were due to his absence at the start.

Spassky pondered long over his moves as play approached the middle game, and chess grand masters predicted a draw from the position after 20 moves. They agreed that Fischer tried

Peterson Says Top-Level Decision Needed

Deadlock in U.S.-Soviet Trade Talks

By Hedrick Smith

MOSCOW, Aug. 1.—Secretary of Commerce Peter G. Peterson said today a top-level decision will be necessary to end the dead-lock on major issues bogging down a Soviet-American trade agree-

At a news conference several bours before leaving Moscow for Poland after a 12-day negotiating visit here, Mr. Peterson reported that Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhney is pressing for concrete steps to expand

From a three-hour meeting with Mr. Breshney in the Crimean resort of Oreanda on Sunday, Mr. Peterson said, he gained the impression the Soviet leader "wants to move on with concrete steps-which is a word he used frequently-and long steps." But after what he termed "intensive bargaining, tough bar-gaining," the American commerce secretary said only that there was "a pretty good chance" of achieving a comprehensive trade agreement by year's end. "But if we're going to achieve that," he cautioned. we've got a lot of work to do."

Closer on War Debt

Major progress, he sald, has been made toward a maritime agreement, and the two sides are "somewhat closer together" on the tough issue of the outstanding Soviet World War II debt to the United States for Lend-Lease aid. But he indicated that differences in all fields remain and that foint working groups will be meeting in the weeks ahead.

In response to questions, Mr. Peterson lent support to the notion that the White House regards such trade concessions as credits and equal tariff treatment for Moscow as inducements for the Russians to use their influence to achieve a Vietnam settlement before the November elections.

There is a relationship between economics and politics," Mr. Peterson acknowledged. 'The mere favorable the political environment, the more political tension is reduced around the world, given the kind of system we have in the United States, the more likely I think that the American public; the Congress and others. will support the concept of expanded trade." But he said the issue of Vietnam did not come up in his talks with Mr. Brezhnev. Nixon administration officials have been careful not to link trade concessions directly to Soviet influence with Hanol, although highly placed Soviet officials say they believe Washington is trying to use such linkage.

Before his departure, Mr. Peterson and Nikolai S. Patolichev, the Soviet foreign trade minister, signed a protocol outlining the

The Week That Really Was

"This," said Sen. Eagleton after he and Sen. McGovern announced that the man from Missouri was withdrawing from ths Democratic national ticket, 'was the week that really was." He was right. The impact of his history of mental troubles upon American politics was profound for the immediate future and quite likely to have long-range implications.

Sen. McGovern's decision to seek a new partner for the campaign, in which Sen. Eagleton acquiesced—but not without initial reluctance-was probably correct. Whatever the current or probable future health of Sen. Eagleton, his past probleme raise enough legitimate doubts to make any practical politician recognize that they could be declsive in a close election. And it is obvious that Sen. McGovern cannot afford to take any risks. Indeed, the question now is whether serious damage has not already been

Sen. McGovern'e staff quite obviously did not make anything like an adequate study of vice-presidential candidates before Sen. Eagleton was selected, and he did not inform them, or Sen. McGovern. The latter was too strong in his initial support of his choice and thus had to hacktrack when the decision was made to change it. The first public reaction against the Eagleton candidacy was strong: it began to change, and to rally to Sen. Eagleton, just before he renounced his place on the ticket finally. The selection of a new running mate for Sen. McGovern, through the Democratic National Committee, is imposing a task new in American politics on a group that is itself in the process of adjusting to structural change.

All of this constitutes a heavy burden on Sen. McGovern and the Democratic party in a race for which it is already handlcapped by a number of factore, including the always difficult tack of running against an incumbent Presdent. Moreover, it is a burden that is fundamentally irrelevant to the issues at stake. Sen. McGovern made this point in announcing the withdrawal of Sen. Eagleton. It can be argued that the errors of the Mc-Govern entourage and his own last-minute selection of a vics-presidential candidate showed a lack of care and forethought that is relevant in a presidential campaign. But thie, unfortunately, hae been typical of all too many ticket-making operations.

The vice-presidency is no longer the big political joke it once was, the joke that was incorporated into the musical comedy "Of Thee I Sing" and made "Throttlebottom" a name that is better known than those of most real vice-preeldential candidates down through the years. It is now well known that accidents can happen to the president-four vice-presidents have taken office in this century on the death of their presidents; it is highly probable that President Wilson was eo seriouely incapacitated in office that he should have been superseded, and Mr. Nixon formally filled in for President Elsenhower during two illnesses. Vice-presidential nominees are closely scrutinized by the electorate, Shouldn't they be given at least as much consideration by the heads of the ticket and the parties in convention? Perhaps after this fiasco, they will be.

Pacific Quadrilateral

The future peace and stability of East Asia depend essentially on an accommodation among the four major powers whose interests intersect in the Western Pacific: Japan, China, the Soviet Union and the United States. Nothing would be more disastrous than an attempt by Japan to play off the other three against each other-or Japanese suspicion that the others are trying to make a deal at the expense of Japan, as occurred after President Nixon's surprise announcement of secret negotiations with Peking.

Japan's vigorous new Premier, Kakuei Tanaka, has given encouraging signs of sharing this viewpoint both in his recent remarks and, even more, in arranging a meeting Aug. 31 with President Nixon before launching into negotiations with China and Russia. He is also wisely seeking a consensus not only within his divided Liberal Democratic party but with opposition leaders before accepting Premier Chou En-lai's invitation to visit Peking. There will be, he said last week, no "mikiri hassha," or train departure without all the passengers aboard.

Mr. Tanaka has moved quickly, as well, 15 defuee the dangerous economic argument with the United States that has been under way for more than a year. While announcing his determination not to further upvalue the yen, he has courageously told his countrymen that Japan must take other measures to reduce its trade surplus with the United States, which exceeded $3 billion in the year ended March 31.

Toward China, Mr. Tanaka has a double problem. He wants to maintain Japan's profitable exports to Taiwan, which are larger than those to mainland China, while moving toward diplomatic relations with Peking. And he does not want to get too far out of step with the United States in policy toward the two Chinas. Arriving at a formula of this kind with Peking may not Much depends on Peking's objectives. For a long time, Communist China appeared intent on dividing the United States and Japan and obtaining an American military withdrawal from Asia. But more recently there appears to have been some recognition in China that the American security treaty with Japan, long anathema to Peking. restrains the tendencies toward remilitarization and nuclearization that Peking claims to see in Tokyo.

Pending an improvement in Sino-Soviet relations, four-power arrangements for stahility and eccurity in East Asia are unlikely. Bilateral negotiations probably will continue to predominate. For both Japan and the United States, the most vital Pacific relationship ie their own partnership. The Nixon-Tanaka summit meeting next month should help to restore the mutual trust and understanding that are essential for effective cooperation.

The Sudanese Defection

Although President Sadat of Egypt continues are not prepared to subordinate indefinitely to castigate the United States despite his dramatic loosening of tles with the Soviet Union, his efforts to forge a united Arab front against Washington suffered a forther setback last week. Sudan's decision to restore diplomatic ties with the United States marked the second defection in a month-Yemen was the first-from the ranks of Arab states that broke relations with the United States during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

President Gasfar Numeiri's action does not necessarily mean that he sees eye-to-eye with the Nixon administration on the Arab-Israeli issue. Rather, it demonstrates that the Sudanese have other interests which they

to the hopeless cause of endless confrontation with Israel. The reopening of a diplomatic dialogue with the United States is a pragmatic expression of Mr. Numeiri's determination to advance those larger interests and of the nonalignment he reasserted after hie own disillusionment with the Russians one year ago.

President Sadat could serve Egypt's wider interests, including a settlement with Ieraei, more effectively if he, too, would eubstitute discussion for vituperation through an exchange of ambassadors with Wash-

Spaak's Achievement

Paul-Henri Spaak fought long and hard for the cause of a united Europe . . . It was the experience, first as a prisoner in the 1914-18 war, and then in a government-inexile in 1940-45, which convinced him of the overwhelming need for European unity. Mr. Speak's greatest achievement was to lead the team of eminent men-all of whose names form a European roll of honor-which drew up the Treaty of Rome. Everyone knows. with hindsight, that the treaty left much to be desired and that, like any such document it was full of ambiguities. The fact remains that it was, and remains, the foundation stone of European integration. It has stood the test of the years.

A Gentle Breeze From China.

By C. L. Sulzberger

PARIS.—The interesting thing about Chairman Mao Tsctung's recent conversation with French Poreign Minister Maurica Schumann was not the Chinese leader's open disclosure that Lin Piao, once his designated successor, had mounted a conspiracy against him, had unsuccessfully attempted to flee to Moscow and was therefore considered a traitor.

This information, which has been trickling out in bits and pieces almost since Lin's plane Mongolia last September, has now been confirmed not only to Schumann but painstakingly to the world at large. really is more significant than the act of placing an official tombstone on a dramatic event in recent Chinese history is the indication Mao gave the French minister concerning the future.

To begin with, the chairman placed the weight of his authority behind the course of moderation in foreign policy now being fixed by Premier Chou En-lai, who is plainly at the administrative helm and may thus be said to have won the war of the Chinese succession that was involved in Lin

More Reasonable

Mao showed himself astonishingly restrained concerning governmental—as distinguished from ideological-policy. He implied approval that Western Europe was continuing to organize along the path of extended unity. He indicated more reasonable views on the Middle East than the West had suspected.

Furthermore, and possibly as a consequence of President Nixon'e Peking visit, Mao hinted at a more moderate view on the Vietnam war than that enunciated by France itself since the famous given by President de Gaulle in Phnom Penh in September, 1966, a speech that has served as a guideline for French policy on this question ever since. Finally, Mao expressed sorrow that De Gaulle had died before he was able to come to China. The innuendo conveyed to Paris is that President Pompidou should make the journey instead and one may be sure that prospects of such a voyage are now being examined. The unexpectedly low key of Maoist observations coocern's tha Middle East and Vietnam without possible importancs in analyzing future French policy. Although dif-ferences between Washington and Paris on both subjects have narrowed somewhat, at least in the:expression, a wida gap remains.

Now, it is not to be excluded that France may deem it opportune to play a more positive roie in peacemaking endeavors between the Arabs and Israel, possibly giving fresh encouragement to the Jarring mission in its shuttle missions among Middle East capitals.

There had already been a suspicion of easement in Paris's bleak hostility toward Israel, before the Schumann Peking trip, It is conceivable further hints of this coftening may develop, even without changes in the substance of fundamental policy. Perhaps more directly significant, because this city plays host to the Vietnam peace talks that have stuttered along more than four years, France might seek to act more positively as a catalyst. If Man expresses himself less rigidly than his own propagan-

Pressurs in this direction has been mounting. The mere fact that Brezhnev agreed to receive Nixon while American mines blockaded Soviet ships inside Haiphong Harbor and while American bombers bammered North Vietnam and the outskirts of Hanol was in itself indicative of a softening Soviet at-

Propaganda Shift

Since then, Russian propaganda on tha war has been subtly less harsh. Meanwhile, the Soviet Union had reduced the risk of being sucked into confrontation with the United States on another front by agreeing to Cairo's request to withdraw much of its military strength

The inference to be deduced from Mao's unusual conversation with Schumann is that Peking as well as Moscow is tempering its foreign policy line, even though Peking and Moscow remain in sharp disagreement. The suggestion that Washington is also eccking formulas cannot help but further influence French policy reflections on its own diplomatic position.

Paris has said since the start it did not feel the moment was yet propitious for any French intervention to bring about a solution but that it would contemplate positive action when the moment did, in fact, appear ripe. Perhaps that time has finally come. When this counits August holidays, having renew surprises may emerge.

BELGRADE.—Communist ideas did not spring forth from the working class. Doctrinaires and political movements put them there instead. Mark and Lenin were aware of the difference between Communist theory and the working-class movement. The advantage of Mark and Lenin over theoreticians and Communist leaders is that for them the revolution and the new society provids the link between their "scientific" views and the working class, that is, the labor move-

According to Marx and Lenin and the Communists, any movement and any class activity not inspired and led by their "science" not only is not revolutionary and not socialist, but logically is not even of the working class. This claim broadened the base of the revolution and, more important, strengthened the convictions of the revolutionaries.

For this reason Communists. despite their best intentions, cannot look upon the working class and its interests and conditions in any other way except in relation to the revolution or-after victory—in relation to power. Depending on the times and the conditions, the influence of Communists over the working class has been stronger or weaker. But complete linking of Communist ideology with the working class has never occurred. Moreover, as Communist rule continues, that is, as industrialization progresses, the gap between ideology and class increases and ultimately reveals itself to be unbridgeable,

The Origin

The origin of that difference is to be found in the ideology itself: just as Hegel's Absolute Spirit was destined to prevail in the world, in the same way the "laws of history" destine Marx's proletariat to destroy capitalism and to construct the "perfect"-classicsssociety. However, the life and the aspirations of the working class, like those of every other social etratum, developed without regard for and even contrary to "historical mission" which the ideologists and revolutionaries had assigned to the working class. However, Marx's theories about the working class as gravediggers

the new property relations since they regulate working conditions and assure basic necessities. But this does not abolish the incompatibility between the working class and the ideological party as the wielder of power. Lenin was to insist upon the initiatory role of the Soviet and upon strengthening the workers within them. But he was quick to free himself from the illusion that a class or a mass can exercise power directly. To take the "leading role" in power and in society, he had at his disposal the party which had carried out the revolution. was to rely upon it most of all."

Musical theater of another sort was the feature last night of a concert by the Austria Radio Orchestra under Michael Gielen. The American soprano Rita Shane effectively projected the psychoogical anguish of the woman in Schoenberg's "Erwartung," and her brightly colored tone cut easily through the composer's expressionist musical forest. Bartok's score for his ballet-nantomime "The Miraculous Mandarin" is another that is explicitly theatrical without needing sets and costumes, and it got a vigorous performance from Gielen and the orchestra.

"Fat City," directed by John Huston, screenplay by Leonard Gardner, based on his novel, won praise from Vincent Canby: "In Tat City, John Ruston's film version of Leonard Gardner's novel, life is having a cigarette and no match-then finding a test for Marjee, who apparently match and getting slightly ill on hopes for a career in show biz, the first pull. Nothing quite either as an actor or as a rock works out the way it's supposed to. But the movie is too full of ine to be as truly dire as it sounds. Mr. Gardner's screenplay is something quite special, full of the kind of dialogue that movies usually can't afford, that defines, time, piace, mood and character while seemingly going nowhere. Stacy Keach and Jeff Bridges, who are comparatively known quantities, are splendid, but so are some faces that are new to me, including Nicholas Colasanto, Art Aragon, Curtis Cokes, and especially Susan Tyr-rell, who plays one of the first believeable drunks I've ever seen on screen.

"The Night Evelyn Came Oct

of the Grave," an Italian-made British harror movie, dubbed in English, is "very much less Brit-ish than Italian," Roger Green-spun reports. The men might all have come from a convention of Milanese hairdressers, and the women, coiffed and disrobed to the limits of mid-1960s daring splendor, might have been their clients. "I can think of other titles for this movie just as apt." Greenspun goes on "For example: "The Night Aunt Agnes Was Fed to the Fet Foxes," or The Night They Buried Alfred Allve.' That last was nobody's fault actually; it's just that when it came time to shovel the dirt over him, the poisonous snake bite on his neck hadn't quite done Alfred in. But I shall leave the plot of Evelyn' undisturbed. scarcely pausing to mention the day that Cousin George falls into the sulphuric ecid-filled swim-ming pool."

PARIS THEATER -

A Capsule History of Social Criticism

DARIS, Aug. 1 (18T).—'1900 Fou" is a lively, ministure speciacle that Vincent Kaldor has mounted at Le Petit Casino, a cafe-theater at 17 Rue Chapon.

Its title suggests cancan dancing alternating with singing waiters. But this tiny show is not at all like that. Instead, employing the more stinging songs and skits of the century's turn, it is a capsule history of social criticism, a contemptuous cartoon of a vanished civilization, a peep at the ugly machinery at work behind the gorgeous facade of an era generally remembered with nostalgie

In 1900 France was split in two by the Dreyfus case. Church and state were about to be divided by the wave of anticlericalism that swept the land in the early 1900s, largely as a result of Dreyfus, Servants were still slaves, the working class was struggling to liberate itself by a series of bloodstained strikes, and underground the anarchists were gnawing at the pillars of society.

In "1900 Fou." done with the light cabaret touch, we have a glimpse of the behind-the-scenes activities of the Third Republic at its gaudy zenith: the Panama Canal scandal, the traf-fic in official honors, the jingoism of colonialism. Life was not all post-impressionist landscapes, novels by Anatole France, verse dramas by Rostand, Rodin sculpture, Debusy music and drawing-room comedies by Call-lavet and Flers and Sarah Bernhardt.

A costumed quartet-Mireille Abadie, Jean-Philippe Ancelle, Pierre Fabien and Marie-France Figeau - perform the Kaldor findings with rest. All are versatile singers and players, and there is a pleasant informality in the proceedings. The company wanders among the café tables as they render the old numbers and with reassuring ease take to the 2-by-4 platform for the sketches.

In addition to the theatrical banquet of tidbits from the turn of the century, a buffet supper is served and wine, brandy and coffee are always available. Curtain time is 10 p.m.

Kaldor has reached into the grab hag of dim yesterdays for his material, all of it of strong period flavor. He pulls forth for his collage comments by authors, stactamen, journalists and lyricists, political slogens, popular catchwords, songs by Aristide Bruant and Leon Xanrof, There is a bit of dialogue from a bitter Becque play, a dash of fronic fantasy from the humorist Alphonse Allais, quotations from Clemenceau and quotations from the comic dramatist Georges Courteline, the guillotined anar-

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss chist Ravachol, Paul Lafargue, as they do the twosome of the Karl Mark's son-in-law, and the second selection. Talk To Me exiled Russian philosopher Kropotkine, as the intimate revue of crazy-quilt pattern jumps from boudoir to confessional and from brothel to swanky soiree.

> Two short plays by Tennessea Williams are being given in English each evening (except Sundays) at 8:15 by the Hamm and Clov Stage Company in the cafe-theater Arlequin - Parnasse 79 Rue Daguerre. The restaurant -with Swiss specialties domi-nating the menu-offers a square tionally well played by Hollin Hood and David Villaire who enact the two characters of both plays. The first of these oneacters is "This Property is Condemned" (known here from the George Roy Hill film adaptation), a tragedy of poverty along the deserted railmed tracks of a Southern town during the depression. Miss Hood as the abandoned, crazed girl driven to eating out of garbage cans, and Villaire, as the moronic boy who would befriend her, succeed in etching the hopeless wretches poignantly

Chinese Find Tomb From Han Dynasty

HONG KONG, Aug. 1 (Reuters).—A tomb of the Han Dynasty dating back 2,100 years was uncovered in China recently, the New China News Agency report ed vesterday.

The discovery was made at Ma Wang Tui, a suburb of Changsha. the capital of Hunan Province.

A body believed to be a woman who died at the age of 50 was found packed in three inner and three ooter coffins wrapped 20 times over with silk fabrics. Half of the body was soaked in reddish liquid, the agency said,

The tobacco trade today asssed that the combined companies should give the new group a 55 percent share of the Dutch market, 40 percent of the Bel-gian market and 20 percent of the German market.

Carreras, one of Britain's biggest tobacco groups, said it will acquire these interests in ex-change for shares and other securities of Carrers. The proposed merger is to become effective from last July 1

In addition to acquiring the principal European companies mentioned Carrers said it will acquire other investments includ-ing a 50 percent stake in Rothmans of Pall Mail (Australia) and a 25 percent stake in Rothmans Industries of New Zealand

To Issue Securities Carreras proposes to issue 57,535,610 B ordinary shares and $40 million of 6 1/4 percent, 20-year convertible senior subordinated sterling/deutsche mark bonds, and £87.31 million, 6 5/8 percent, 40-year convertible junior subordinated sterling/DM bonds. ## FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Auto Imports in U.K. Climb

New car sales in Britain moved up by 55 percent in June compared with the year-ago month to a record for the month, but foreign cars still took over a quarter of the market, the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders reports. Imports accounted for a record 26.73 percent of the total, the first time that this figure has topped 25 percent. Renault firmly consolidated its lead position with 7,275 sales for the month, equal to 4.68 percent of the market, followed by Flat with 3.29 percent and Volkswagen with 3.91 percent. For the first eix months, total U.K. sales were another record, 869,433 units against 619,587 in the first haif of 1971. Import penetration for the six months ross to 33.41 percent from 19.17 percent.

Dresdner Bank Earnings Rise

Drescher Bank earnings increased slightly in the first half compared with the same 1971 period despite increased costs and a shrinking margin between interest paid and received. In an interim report, the German bank said earnings from interest and portfolio investments rose 1.3 percent to 316.9 million deutsche marks (ebout 198 million) in the first half on a gain of almost 10 percent in its volume of business to 29.23 billion DM. It said it is unable to predict whether the slight improvement in overall earnings will continue into the second half because of the many uncertainties it faces.

Demag Six-Month Turnover Gains

Demag turnover increased 33 percent to 820 million deutsche marks (about $255 million) in the first half of this year compared with the sama 1971 period. But the West German engineering company notes that the sharp increase reflected the completion of several major contracts and forecast that over the whole year. turnover would hold at around last year's level when group sales reached 1.62 billion DM. New orders fell about 16 percent to 790 million DM in the first balf from the year-ago period. In a prospectus for the stock exchange listing of new shares, it declined to forecast earnings for the year. In 1971, net incoma feil 37.6 percent to 21.2 million DM_

United Brands Says Profits, Sales Up United Brands, buoyed by a recovery in its banana business, hed second-quarter earnings ut more than $6 million, or 50 cents a share, against $4.4 million, or 36 cents a share, a year ago, says chairman Eli Black. Sales rose to over $400 million from $377 million a year ago, he adds. First-balf profit was about $8 million, or 63 cents a share, up from $6.1 million, or 47 cents, a year ago. Sales exceeded $800 million, up from last year's $728.4 million. Mr. Bierk says the earnings rise came mainly from its United Fruit division, which benefited from growing stability in wholesale banana prices after more than two years of instability. While there is no official comment on a dividend payment some analysts expect the company to resume payouts. It had been paying $5 cents a share quarterly as late as 1970 and paid 15 cents a share semi-annually in 1971. The board omitted the semi-annual dividend last December

United Aircraft Sees Sharp Profit Rise

United Aircraft, continuing a strong comeback from earlier troubles highlighted by difficulties with the engines it builds for the Boeing 747 airliner, will report sharp earnings gains for the second quarter and first half, company officials say. Juna quarter earnings, to be reported next week, not only exceed last year's reported $7.5 million on sales of $473.7 million, but approximate the first-quarter net income of $125 million on volume of $5045 million. The March quarter profit was up 55 percent from the initial 1971 quarter. The figures indicate a marked turnaround for the aircraft-engine producer from last year's deficit of $43.9 million, which included a year-end $137 million provision in pretax operating result for after-sales costs and other obligations releted to the JT9 D engine made by the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft division for the 747. The comments point to possible earnings this year in excess of 1970 net income of $45.5 million, or $3.76 a share.

Japan's Payments Surplus Increased Sharply in June

TORYO Ang. I (AP-DI) a $216 million net outflow in Japan ran a balance-of-payments. June compared with a $137 milsurplus of $240 million in June, iton deficit a year earlier. The compared with a $22 million surplus in May and a $684 million wider deficit to payments made leased today by the Pinance Min- of the seamen's strike, istry showed.

Cauttal Plows

The sharp increase compared with the preceding month was recorded a net outflow attributed to the impact of the Japanese seamen's strike, which cut imports by a larger margin than exports. The decline compared with a year earlier largely reflects last year's severe mone-tary crisis, which caused an influx of both long and short-term funds in June, 1971.

Exports in June rose to $2.16 billion from $2.01 billion a year earlier Imports advanced to $1.37 billion from $1.36 billion. This left a trade surplus of $782 million, up from $648 million a year

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the June trade surplus totaled $760 million, up from $566 mil-. lion in May.

The ministry said that exports of autos and steel registered significant declines as a result of the seamen's strike while cruda oil coal and metallic cres were most affected on the import side. The services account registered

Canital Flows The long-term capital account million in June, up from a $5 million deficit a year earlier. Tha ministry said that while net for-eign long-term funds entering Japan in June totaled $99 million, large-scale Japanese trade credits and a subscription to a World Bank capital increase produced a $343 million outflow of Japanese money. The short-term capital account showed a surplus of $36 million in June, down sharply from a $144 million surplus a year ear-lier, and errors and omissions were listed as a $95 million deficit, compared with a surplus of $101 million in June, 1971.

Meanwhile, government sources said that Prime Minister Kakufi Tanaka and Trade Minister Yasubiro Nakasone confirmed they would try to bring Japan's trade surplus with the United States for the current fiscal year below the $3 billion level.

projects it is planning to help meet the energy needs of both itself and the United States in the 1970s. The cost is expected to reach

$50 billion and the questions facing authorities here are where the new capital will come from and how it will affect Canada's Canada's future ability to fill

its own energy needs, as well as to help supply bungry energy users in the United States, chiefly with oil and gas, will depend on bow easily the Canadian and U.S. capital markets can be tapped for funds to build new energy plants and modernize existing ones, Borrowing Has Begun

The new wave of borrowing has already begun, much of it coming, as in the past, from the United States and Western Europe,

Canada'a two largest power utilities, the Hydroelectric Power Commission of Ontario and Hydro-Quebec, are big borrowers in foreign capital markets. Ontario Hydro is now borrowing at a rate of about $600 million a year at home and abroad. That is three times the annual borrowings of the Provinca of Ontario for fts nonenergy requirements.

Much of Ontario Hydro's new funds is going into a second nuclear power plant and for extensions to existing power outlets and transmission lines. Hydro-Quebec's new cash needs are not

These two provincially-owned power utilities supply electric power to Ontario and Quebec, Canada'e two largest industrial provinces. Total energy needs in Canada rely on about 75 percent electricity, compared with 15 percent in the United States

Larger still than Churchill Falls, which is now the largest single hydroelectric power plant in the West, is the James Bay power project in Quebec, which will cost an estimated 612 billion before completion at the end of the decade. Oil Pipeline Financing

Canada's recently announced $4 billion oil pipeline, connecting the Arctic Ocean cource with users in Western Canada and the United States, will probably be fi-nanced both from earnings gen-

Earnings Up New Peace Hopes Spur 12% in Quarter Brisk Rally on Wall St.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1 (NYT) .- the NASDAQ index rose 0.55 to Prices on the New York Stock Exchange registered their first advance in six sessions today in stepped-up trading with the glamour issues showing the best gains. The recovery was attributed mainly to the White House ennouncement, made immediately after the market opened, that presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger was in Paris for onother round of private negotiations on the Vietnam war. Newton Zinder, an analyst at E. P. Hutton, commented that, "Mr. Kissinger's return to Paris eo soon after his last visit there is increasing investor hopes of some settlement in Vietnam." Other bullish factors were the continuing flow of improved second-quarter corporate earning reports and the announcement late yesterday by C. Jackson Grayson, Price Commission chairman, that price controls might be removed by the end of tha year or by next April. Although today's upswing was not sharp it was broad-based. The Dow Jones industrial everege, which was no throughout the ses sion, finished with a gain of 5.72 at 930.46, its high for the day. Turnover on the Big Board expanded to 15.54 million shares from 11.12 million yesterday, Among the glamours, IBM soared 9 1/4 to close at a historic high of 410. It was the biggest point gainer of the session. Near the close, a federal judge in St. Paul denied the request of Triex Corp. for a restraining order to prevent IBM from meking an introductory announcement tomorrow about two new computers. Telex, which makes peripheral equipment for computers, had cortended that IBM's new computers are designed to prevent competitors' products from being attached. Telex was up 3/8 to Other atrong performers in-

Price of Gold Climbs Anew

LONDON, Aug. 1 (AP-DJ) .-Persistent speculation about further increases in the official price of gold pushed free market bullion quotes up to records in London and other European markets today. Dealers here set the morning fixing price at $53.60 an ounce, up 50 cents from yesterday'e late fixing and climbed another . 3 cents this afternoon to close $1 higher at $69.30 an ounce, a re-

In the past week, the free-market price has climbed more than $4 an ounce and now stands more than $31 above the official price of $38 established under last December's monetary agreement. London dealers said trading was "moderately active" at the first fixing and "active" et the afternoon price setting. Reports that France and Italy are to propose that tha price of gold be revalued upward for internal official EEC transections probably generated some of the speculative buying interest today.

dealers said. Markets were closed in Zurich, but in Paris gold seared to record levels with demand described as "very active." The kiloingot was traded at a record equivalent to $70.66 an ounce.

Treasury Considers Sales WASHINGTON, Aug. I (Reuters). - Treasury Secretary George Shultz said bis department will consider selling its gold to licensed domestic industrial users at competitive prices.

BRIDGE

By Alan Truscott

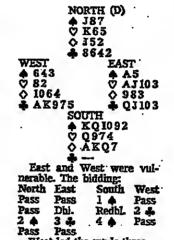

Excellent defense on the diagramed deal robbed the declarer of his contract. South bid optimistically to game in spades. His partner passed at the one level, but later bid two spades after East's balancing double. The fact that East and West were both bidding clubs encouraged South to hope that his partner's alender values would be in the major suits an accurate assessment.

West led a trump and when East won with the ace he shifted to the club queen. South ruffed and led a heart to dummy's king. East took this and played a second club, which was again ruffed. South cashed the spade king and cashed three diamond winners, ending in his hand in this posi-

South led the diamond queen, and East made a fine move by refusing to ruff. Instead, he dis-carded his remaining heart, and the declarer was helpless. He was left with the choice of drawing the last trump and losing two tricks at the finish or allowing West to ruff the heart oueen.

If West had made the routine play of ruffing the diamond queen, South would have overruffed and played a heart, and South's heart combination would have been worth two tricks.

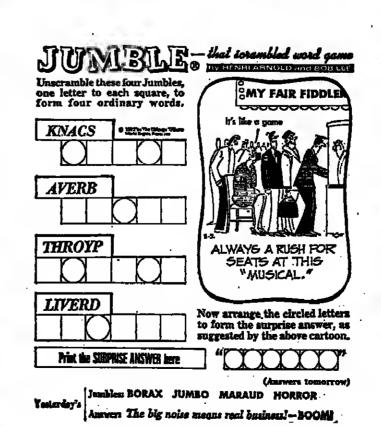

West led the spade three.

DENNIS THE MENACE

OH-OH! I DON'T LIKE THE SOUND OF HER VOICE. IT MEANS I EITHER GOTTA GET CLEANED UP OR I DID SOMETHIN' WRONG!

wrote that his achievement "was less the result of intellect than of character." Today the word "character" has an oldfashioned ring to it. And in America we have been told again and again—by "Freudian revision-ists" and "existentialists," by Herbert Marcuse and Norman O. Brown, by California optimists, by feminists that Freud is old hat, that "orthodox" psycho-analysis is hopelessly Victorian. To talk about character is a downer. Yet Freud's description of his character was hardly dull, cold, pallid or uptight: "I am actually not at all a man of science," he wrote at 43 after the publication of "The Interpreta-tion of Dreams," "not an observer, not an experimenter, not a think-er. I am by temperament nothing but a conquistador, an adventurer... with all the inquisitiveness, daring and tenacity char-acteristic of such a man."

This may seem grandiose but it is profoundly true. Freud's character was heroic. His life must be seen as a series of terrific battles: with himself, to develop out of his own experience the basic concepts of psychoanalysis; with the scientific establishment, to win acceptance of his new science; with his colleagues and disciples who so often split from him; with his own ideas and formulations, which he revised again and again, and finally with cancer of the mouth and jaw, a battle that lasted from 1923 when he was 67 until his death in 1939 at 83.

In these last 16 years Freud sustained no less than 33 surgical operations; he lived in constant pain from a monstrous prosthetic device worn in his mouth to separate his oral and nasal cavities. Through it all he refused any sedative that might impair his thinking (he took only aspirin) and continued to see patients and write some of his greatest, most radically original books and es-says. When the Nazis marched into Vienna in 1938, he moved to London and continued working

A major witness of Freud's last 11 years was his personal physician, Max Schur, 40 years his junior. Schur had been under Freud's "spell" (as he called it) ever since he'd heard the famous introductory lectures on psychoanalysis in Vienna in 1915, After Freud's death, Schur became a psychoanalyst himself and prac-ticed both specialties with distinction in New York until his own death at 72 in 1969. For years he resisted those who urged him to write his memoirs of Freud, but in 1954 he felt obliged to con-tribute a draft of what he thought would be the last chapter of Ernest Jones's magnificent "The Life and Work of Sigmund Freud." Jones used only part of Schur's material, however, and Schur Jones's interpretations.

Little by little Schur realized he had to write his own book. And so he began a study that would TATE in life Sigmund Freud trace Freud's thoughts about li has wrote that his achievement illness and death throughout l P career and would subject Frencish works and letters to psychoanalise tic scrutiny in the hope of d co-covering the origins of his for tor tude. Schur's book would be once an interpretive essay psychoanalysis, a biographic n study (not a fullscale biograph; n and a memoir. It would be write ten not only for specialists b also for all those in the humar f ties and behavioral sciences willo an interest in Frend. It would 'h. the culmination of Schur's 1: I and a necessary act of homage "Freud: Living and Dying" "

the result. It was left "complet, but needed "editorial work" wh Schur died. It contains some pages of unpublished letters fr Freud to Wilhelm Fliess and other friends. It modifies Jones's m terpretations at several point most importantly by arguing t Freud did have genuine, unneu tic cardiac trouble between ages of 37 and 40 (when he breaking through to the covery of psychoanalysis). It examines Freud's relation: with Fliess in the light of transference phenomenon in chosnalysis. It briefly but it portantly criticizes Freud's are ments for the "death instinctor "Beyond the Pleasure Princ" and for the inheritance of acqu ed characteristics in "Moses or Monotheism."

Yet Schur's book is a great; appointment. It is marred by underlying passivity, the aws the young man before the is master. Schur interprets less x he quotes or paraphrases.ia hasn't written his book so no as assembled it. He doesn't b his own memoir until more to 400 pages have gone by, and if memorialist he doesn't convey moving or enlightening ways own experience of Freud and man. His powers as an anecdon are negligible. He hasn't the it of writing for a general, educate andience: He leaves out cru; transitions and background formation, he falls to empha and structure his arguments.

This is sad, for it seems cl that Schur was a good man : a devoted doctor. But "Free Living and Dying" cannot be re by many—as intended—as a cr plement to Jones's "Life a Work"; it can function as s only for scholars. For gene readers the Lionel Trilling-Ste. Marcus abridgement of Jor. work remains the one acces; biography: it is a great book. with Freud as with all great r memoirs and interpretations. the lives of great men, like g works of art, pose questions al life itself that can never be swered for once and for all. I especially sad at this mon-when Freud and psychoana are so unfashionable that I Schur could not explore with n Freud's heroic and exemplary

Mal Whitfield Runs On the Sands of Time

· MOGADISHU, Somalia, Aug. 1 (AP).-It is on the beach. Seven young men in track shorts sprint past some startled Somali fishermen. Mai Whitfield's pre-Olympic regional African athletics' training camp is under way. "We're going to do some high knee litts in the water,"
Whitfield called out. "Build up the thighs. Yeah, Comm-

The legs belong to someone else now, but at 47 years old Malvin Greston Whitsfield is still running for Olympic gold. Along with the live vocabulary of his youth, the drive that won 308 meter gold metals for the United States in the 1948 and 1962 Olympies is still there.

"Men, if one or two of these cats get a medal at Munich, we've proved our point. And they can do it, they can do it," Whitfield said. The point has been the same ever since Whitfield came to Africa nearly 28 years ago—to help pull Africa up by its athletic bootstraps. But the approach is different this year. "We have runners here from Sudan Swazhand Lesotho, and we have some Semalls working out with us, too," Whitfield said: "These countries are not on top of the pile, but they have attricts who could blossom out and become symbols to promote sports on a wider scale. I'm not interested in countries like Kenya—they've already arrived."

The 10-week training camp is a joint United States-Somak effort financed largely by the participating countries. The visiting athletes sleep in a boarding school and eat at a nearby Chinese restaurant, at a total cost of $350 per man. Whitsfield said the regional clinic could be a model for athletic development on a continent of scent resources and limited sports traditions. "Man it will be 50 years before Africa takes its full place in sports," ha said. "It patience means cool, you're got to be chilly in Africa—chilly.

"Centralizing manpower in regions to prepare young people for international competition is the only way to make progress." Do It in Africa Whitefield would like to see clinics for a number of sports sponsored by the Organization of African Unity in the least developed of its 41 nations-put the boxing camp in Cameroon, man, not Wigeria."

"Now these guys here could have gone to Germany to train before the Olympics, but it's important that they do it in Africa-on their own," he said. They run up to six hours a day in the surf, on the hard sand and over the slippery dunes on the edge of Mogadishu.

A daily log is kept on each athlete and weekly reports are sent to sports authorities in his country. It's the first taste of disciplined coaching for some. Motsapi Moorosi, a 27-year-old schoolteacher from Lesotho, is one of Whitfield's medal hopes. He has run 100 meters in "I never had a coach in my life until last year and then only for six weeks. I learned to run from books," Moorosi

"He sould get down to 10 flat and not many American sprinters are going to beat him," Whitfield said. "You can forget the Russian sprinters." As for Whitfield he is 25 pounds over his racing weight (189 pourses), but he tears through most days as if he were kicking for the finishing tape. He's up before 6 am, out on the beach and then downtown in a Whitfield-modified Volkswagen to the United States Information Service, where he works as a regional youth and sports affairs officer for Africa.

Mostly, he fesses over his runners. "Now, Richard, you run 2 1'2 hours this morning and some back to the house after 1 1 1 hours for a glass of water and some juice," he said. "If Mussa's knee still hurts, he's got to soak it. We don't want leg troubles-that's what we don't

Incantations Fill Football's Sacred Hall

By Red Smith NEW YORK, Bug 1 (NYT) .-The notion that the golden age of oratory in America ended in 1925 when William Jennings Bryan contracted quinsy was dispelled over the weekend when Gino Marchetti, Olie Matson, Ace Parker and Lamar Bunt were invested with immortality, outfitted with harps and wings and installed in the Professional Football Hell of Fame in Canton,

Ohio. Connoisseurs were divided on whether the flood of eloquence crested when Carroll Cicero Rosenbloom commended Marchetid to perpetual veneration or when William Demosthenes Sallivan ushered Humi into the shrine that Lamar didn't quite destroy a few years ago. The Hall of Fame originated of course, as a pantheon dedicated exclusively to gods and goddings enrolled in the National Football League, an organization that was brought to its knees by Lamar Hunt's outlaw band, the american Football League. Now that they're all one big happy monopoly, Bill Soli 720, president of the New England Patriots and a charter member of Hunt's periidious tong, pre-sented the AFL founder to terms that would have swept George III in as president of the First Continental Congress, though they might not have got Lamar an introduction to Pete Roselle before the leagues merged.

Carroll Rosenbloom, the movable club owner, deligated a moving address in which he ranked Marchetti on a per with Abraham Lincoln and the Taj Mahal

Ace Parker's encombine were less impassioned, yet the chances are he is remembered favorably by more football fans than any other Hall of Fame inmate. He was seen and saluted by more fans in one day than most other players are in a lifetime.

There are certain dates in history indelibly impressed upon everybody's memory. Each of us who is old enough remembers where he was and what he was doing when he heard of Franklin D. Roosevelt's death, when the news came that Pearl Harbor had been bombed, when President Truman announced that Janan had surrendered when President Kennedy was shot

After 35 years on the Eastern sports beat, it can be testified that on Dec. 7, 1941, every adult this side of the Appalachians was in the Polo Grounds watching Ace Parker lead Brooklyti's football Dodgers to victory over the Giants. Never mind the official attendance figures; just ask the man closest to you right now where he was that day.

Parker could do snything in football except make the Dodgers amount to something.

Football wasn't the game of Perker's choice though. He wanted to make it in baseball and if he hadn't been so good at football he might have succeeded. He went directly from the Duke campus to the Philadelphia Athletics.

Philadelphia carried him on the roster as an outfielder, but with his deceptive speed afoot and his swift reflexes he could make any defensive position look easy. Connie Mack used him at shoristop, second base, third base and in the outfield but after two summers concloded he would never hit the curve without schooling in Williamsport or Little Rock. Ace might have solved his problem in the minors but he chose football's major league instead Today players with half his ability pay their hair stylists more than he collected from the Dodgers, but even so, Ace could be rich today except for his own Carelessiess. The year he joined the Athletics, 1837, they trained in Mexico City. The Spanish Civil War was on then and Merico was a haven for the world's finest jai alai players, who may also have been the forcest little Basques ever assembled in one fronton. The fluctuations in betting odds were fascinating. They played doubles matches with 21 points needed to win. Say the Red team opened as a 5-to-8 favorite in the mutuels. Nine times out of 10, the Blue team times out of 10, the Blue team Pro Speed Skating would get a lead like 17 to 14 and move into favoritism.

Parker and Chubby Dean, his buddy from Duke who was a first baseman-pitcher, soon discovered this phenomenon. They would back the Blue team in the mutuels, wait till the odds turned over and then bet Red. With the odds in their favor no matter who won, they would set back and bawl, "C'mon, anybody!"

For six weeks, peace made their pockets bulge like a chipmank's cheeks. Then the team headed north for Philadelphia. Ace and Chubby went along, the dopes.

Wottle's Knees May Halt Double

By Neil Amdur

OSLO, Aug. 1 (NYT).-The honeymoon is still on for Dave Wottle, but his hopes for an Olympic gold medal may be over. Less than one month after he equaled the world record in the 300-meter run at the United States Olympic track and field trials, and also qualified for the 1.500, and also got married the 21-year-old Wottle is being bothered by tendonitis in his knees. A chronic problem in the past. the current pain has become so severs that Wortle admits "I haven't gotten in a good workout in three weeks" and talks of abondoning his attempt at a middie-distance double at Munich, probably dropping the 1500.

I'm down psychologically because I've lost so many work-oots," the Bowling Green University senior said today in his dormitory room at a local uni-versity, where the American men's track and fleid team is risying for the pre-Olympic training program. "Unless I get in a few good workouts and races between now and the Olympics.
I'll go into the races in Munich thinking I'm out of shape and can't stick with the pace." Wottle withdrew from a 2,000-meter tune-up in the hig two-day international meet that starts here tomorrow night and that has lured such outstanding medal hopefuls as Pietro Mennez, the sensational Italian sprinter; Donald Quarrie of Jamaica; Jean-Louis Revelomentson of Malagasy: Guy Drut, the French high burdler, and Pekka Vasala, the Finnish middle-distance ace.

The 3.000, to be run Thursday night, appeared to be a perfect place for Wottle to build the strength that, he sorn contribntes to his exciting last-lap kick Besides, Steve Prefontaine, who has said he will pace the 1.500 looks like I'll think about just tonicitor to help a former college teamorale at Oregon. "I started taking butazolidin pilis resterder." Wottle said, doming his familiar white golf cap for a late-afternoon workout today, while his wife. Jan, caught up on correspondence. "They'ra supposed to help ease the pain. I don't know if they will but just so it gets me through the Olympics is all I care about now." Wollie won the 800 at the United States trials in 1 minute 44.3 seconds in the fastest halfmile ever ren and finished second to Jim Ryan the following week in the 1.500.

"I'm not going to stop thinking about the double," he said of his 300-1360 assignment, "But it

Juventus Spends $440,000 for Player

French, Italian Teams Set To Buy Success in Soccer

By Brian Glanville

LONDON, Aug. 1 (NYT) .--Olympique Marseille, the French champion, whose motto appears to be, "If it moves buy it," will need all its expensive new stars if it is to survive the first round of the European Cup, in which it is drawn against the Italian champions Juventus.

After the recent French Cup Pinal in which Marseilles completed a League and Cup double, a disappointed French critic remarked that there was a siuggishness about Marscilles football which still kept it well below the level of the best European chubs, of which Juventus

Juve. too, has made some interesting purchases, none less expected than that of José Altafini who, as "Mazzola"—nick-named for his resemblance to the father of the present Inter and Italy star-was Brazil's center-forward in the 1958 World Cup. Juventus is desperate for a "shoulder" on which the $440,000 center-forward, Pietro Anastasi, can bean and no doubt it was encouraged to buy the veteran Mazzola-Altafini by his performance last season against them. in Turin, for Naples. Altafini headed one fine goal and secured a penalty from which Nanies scored when another header was handled on the goal line. So Naples drew, 2-2 Its Italian international goalkeeper. Ding Zoff, on whom Juventus 1185 long cast covetous eves, is also going to the immensely wealthy Turks club, which thrives on the patronage of the Agnelli, Fist,

Juve will be hooing, however-as will so many of us that poor Roberto Bettega, its hest striker last season, will fully recover from his chest complaint, and find his best form. It will be remembered that midway through last season, Bettega fell ill, and had to go to a sanatorium. Though he is said to have recovered medically, that is a loog way from being fit enough to resist the great physical demands of top class football.

In the Cup Winners' Cup, Hibernian, drawn against Sporting Lisbon, is Scotland's representative. Rangers, who won the tournament by beating Moscow Dynamo in the final, is, as we know, suspended for a year from European competition. Before it appealed, its suspension was for two years, the consequence of the damage dooe and confusion caused by their rowdy supporters at the final in Barcelona.

Although its manager, Willy Waddell, said he welcomed the remission of sentence, I still think the principle of treating fans as rirtual agents of a club quite false a'nd dangerous. Wouldn't it have been better to allow Rangers to defend its trophy, but play all home games on neutral grounds, awey from Glasgow? It remains to be seen whether Schalke 04, the West German Cupwinners, and league runnersup, will eventually be allowed to participate; it is drawn, all being well, against Slavia Sofia. It is still under investigation for allegedy having "thrown" a match last year, against Arminia Bielefeld. Meanwhile, the excellent Borussia Munchengladbach team inspired by the dazzling Gunter Netzer, assisted by the versatile Wimmer, must content itself with the UEFA Cup, where there's a very strong field again this year. With a little luck, Munchengladbach might have reached the European Cup Final. It will be remembered that it thrashed Inser, 7-1, but the result was annulled, and the replay drawn 0-0 breause Boninsegna was struck by a Coca Cola can.

A hasy and worrying season indeed for curiously unprepared DEFA?

I'm soury not to see Russian revelations, Zoria Voro-shilovgrad, in any tournament, though the time of this remarkable team will come. The Russians sent it en bloc to Brazil for the Independence Trophy. where it beat Uruguay and lost only by I-0 to Argentina and Portugal. Meanwhile, it has been setting a hot pace in the Russian Championship, and has many fine players such as the Kuznetsov brothers-right back and deep ontside-right-and Onisoenko, Russia's left winger in the Nations Cup final.

May Break the Ice

OSLO, Aug. 1 (AP).—Triple Olympic gold medallist Ard Schenk of the Netherlands confirmed today he has signed a contrast to race for a new professional speed skating union.

Schenk, who is vacationing in south Norway, told a newspaper that details of the union will be announced in Stockholm Friday. Kees Verkerk, a former Dutch world champion, also said he will join the professional group, but added that he has not yet signed any contract.

Wottle was married July 15. His physical problems began oo July 21, the day after he arrived in Brunswick, Maine, to begin the first phase of pre-Olympic work-

"I did a hard workout that Wottle said, scanning a carefully charted workout schedule. "I guess it was 100 hard, because I haven't been able to work out serious! since then."

Several American athletes, mostdistance runners, brought their wives to this training camp. Bill Bowerman, the coach of the men's track and field teem, believes Wottle may have made mistake in trying to combine hone, moon and training for two Olympic events, particularly with such delicate medical prob-

"His wife is 3,000 miles away from home, they just got married, so naturally he's got to be concerned about where she is and whether she's happy," Bowerman said. "That's a lot of responsibility right now, particularly with everything else Dave has on his eligibility probe under rules of both the IOC and the International Amateur Athletic Pedera-Rule 26 of the IOC states that an athlete "must not directly or indirectly have allowed his name, his photo or his sports perfor-mance to be used individually for advertising purposes."

Rule 53 of the IAAF says that an athlete is incligible to compete in international events if he "allows his name or his picture, whether static or moving, to be used directly or indirectly to advertise any merchandise." Commenting on the advertisements, John Holt, executive director of the IAAP, sald today: "The eligibility committee of the IOC are very active at the present time, and it is quite possible that they will want to know something about this." Bedford, the European 5,000 and 10,000-meter record bolder, is at present having altitude training for the Olympics at Font Romeu, France, and may be nnaware that his name was being used to advertise the newspaper article, in which case, under the rules, his status would not be imperiled. Arthur Gold, secretary of the British Amateur Athletic Board said: "It is very unlikely that he had any knowledge of this advertising. I am not worried about the positioo, but I would be concerned if he became involved in any inquiry which would disturb his concentration

NHL's Sanderson ReportedlyReady To Join WHA

BOSTON, Aug. 1 (UPI).-Derek Sanderson, center on the Stanley Cup champion Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, has agreed to sign a contract for more than $2.6 million with the Philadelphia Blazers of the World Hockey Association, It was learned yesterday.

Attorney Robert Woolf, who represents Sanderson and other athletes, said no contract had been signed but that it would "absurd" for Sanderson to reject the offer. Woolf would not mention the exact amount. but said it was in excess of the $2.6 million Sandersoo originally meotioned.

Although details are not available, it is believed Sanderson will pick up a $300,000 paycheck the first year of his 10-year contract.

Namath Signs Jet Contract For $500,000

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y., Aug. 1 UPI).-Joe Namath signed a two-year, $500,000 contract-$250,000 a rear-with the New York Jets today and became the highest paid player in pro football history.

The announcement of the contract, agreed upon late last night after months of negotiations by Jets owner Philip Iselin and James Walsh. Namath's attorney, was made today at the team's Hoistra University training site.

The contract is Namath's third since he joined tha club in 1966. His original pact, one of the highest during the war between the leagues, was reportedly $427,000 and his 1960 contract was estimated at $500,000 for three years.

Ashe Tops Cox In Straight Sets

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 1 (UPI -- American Arthur Ashe outdueled Mark Cox of England from the baseline, 6-1, 6-4, yesterday to win the $10,000 first prize in the $50.000 First National tennis chassic.

Ashe, who had eliminated John Newcombs in the semifinels, broke Cok's serve in the first game of the first set and maiotained the pressure the rest of the way despite some spectacular shots by the left-handed Englishman,

Cox broke Ashe's serve only once-in the fourth game of the first set-but the American came back to wrap up the set with a service break in the ninth game.

A Machine Who...

By Russell Baker

NEW YORK.-Naturally, I did not want to be vice-president of the United States. I told them as much when they came to me offering the tob I considered the vice - presidency of the United States an absurd occupation for a normel man, I told them. an office that had always associated

with nonentities from underpopulated states. Oh yes, there had been one man who was famous for having Amer-ican Indian blood in his family tree and another with an eccentric fancy for alliteration. What else could anyone remember about any of tirem?

Well, they seid, a lot of them

Exactly, I said. That was the most absurd thing of all about the vice-presidency. That some-body whose chief distinction lay in the fact that he came from a different region of the country from the president, or went to a different church from the president should thereby acquire a lien on the presidency of the United States.

That was abnormal. I said, and no man with a sound purchase on the values of American life can possibly be interested in the vice-presidency of the United States. The more so since it required a man not only to live in Washington, D. C., hut also to listen without comment to the proceedings of the United States

I said I was far too normal to aspire to anything like that. I said I didn't want to be vicepresident. I said what I wanted to be was a mechine.

They said, exactly.
What they wanted for the job, they said, was the most normal

American they could find. Normality, they said, was what they needed to balance the ticket. What I had, they said, was an intense normality which, when combined with my nenentity, my remarkably preserved teeth, which might easily swing two or three close otates when bared on television, and my easily documented non-anti-labor position over the years-well, the party needed me.

Naturally, I resisted. I told them that while, like every normal American, I wanted to be a machine, there was something about my yearning to be mechanized that I had not revealed.

That worried them a bit. You wouldn't be reluctant to be an autometic smiling machine? One of them asked. You don't have anything against being a gigantic noise-making muchine? asked en-You aren't too cowardly to be the button which, when pressed, fantastic death-dealing machinery on the far side of the world? another asked.

They were all on the wrong track. They lacked drive. They were not tuned in. I told them they were off target and ought to have their batteries recharg-

My problem was too simple for their sophisticated antennae to detect. The fact that I was willing to be any machine at all. Sometimes at the dinner table

I would be a ticking bomb. At the office I was sometimes a ornamo throwing off infectious charges of energy in the hope that the management, perceiving my powerful machine instinct. oright request me to become an entire system.

I told them the truth. - I had never been able to decide what kind of machine I wanted to be. They laughed when they heard my confession of uncertainty. Why, they said, everybody in America who is normal had trouble making up his mind what kind of machine he wanted to

One sober old politician asked if I had ever gone to a psy-chiatrist to discuss this indecision concerning my mechanical destiny, and was relieved to hear that I had not.

The important thing, from the point of view of balancing the ticket, he said was normality. With normality, he explained, the ticket could become a juggernaut which would steamroller its way into the White

The Time for Decisions On Ahvenanmaa Islands

By Jan Sjöby

MAARIANHAMINA, Finland (IHT).—The archipelago of Ahvenanmaa (or Aaland), made of 6,544 islands, islets, skerries and rocks, is a more or less autonomous province within the Finnish republic. Its capital and only city is Maarianhamma, population 8,000.

The islands are, by international agreement, a demilitarized cone and Ahvenanmaa men are exempt from Finnish military service. The province has its own flag, blue, red and yellow and the Finnish national colors, blue on white, are rare over the white frame houses that make up most of Maarianhamina.

The islands are beautiful. The surrounding waters, the Baltic in the south, the Bothnian in the North and the Sea of Ahvenanmaa in the west, are about the cleanest and clearest in this end of the world. The fishing is good and so are the landed fish, mainly herring and salmon, The islanders number about 21,000. Another 600 are badly seeded. Unemployment is virtually unheard of and the Ahvenanmaa labor board is trying to recruit Swedish labor. The meat prices are ridiculously low by Scandinavian standards. That seems to be the problem in this latter-day

In the past 10 or 15 years, Masrianhamina has been the target for hundreds of thousands of Swedish housewives rushing off the 20-odd daily ferries connecting the island paradisa with the Swedish mainland. They head straight for the butcher They are followed, sometimes, by stumbling and staggering husbands who have taken more than advantage of the tax-free liquor offered aboard. Sometimes they made it to the Alko-the government-run liquor store. If they do, chances are they don't make it back. Last year, 800,000 Swedish tourists landed in the ferry harbor, most of them on one-day raids of the butcher shops.

This year the figure is expected to reach the million mark. The Swedish invasion has made a heavy impact on Abvenanmaa, traditionally a land of farmers, fishermen and deep-sea sailors. The islanders have to import beef from mainland Finland to meet the Swedish demand. Ahvenanman housewives have to line for hours at the meat counters, elbowing with all those Swedes.

The tourist boom, naturally, has brought some good: Ready

STAYING IN PARIS?

By Peter Grose

TERUSALEM, Aug. 1.—A leading biblical ocholar has sharply disputed a colleague's claim to have discovered a section of the Gospel of St. Mark among the miscellaneous fragments of the Dead Sea Scrolls.

The Rev. Pierre Benoit, director of the prestigious Ecole Biblique et Archeologique Prançaise in Jerusalem, offers no elternative hypothesis about what the fragments in question might be-but he sees no way in which they can be reed as St. Mark.

The claim by the Rev. Jose O'Callaghan, published in Rome last March, stirred excitement, and some consternation, among biblical scholars, for it seemed to advance the presumed date of St. out shortly after AD 70.

The writing on the scraps of papyrus is indistinct, Pather Benoit said in an interview, but even by stretching his imagination he was unable to make the marks that do show up tobocide with the Greek letters necessary to prove Father O'Callaghan's suggestion. Father Benoit went further to caution that even if the rendering as a part of St. Mark's Gospel could be established, there was no way to date the tragment precisely, and it could have been written as late as .AD | 150, by which time there would be no surprise at finding the Gospel Sally Rand-68 And Still at It

The Times of London yesterday printed a letter from a reader sent on 27-July 1972. If you don't recognize the signifi-cance of that fact you may not be aware that there'll always be an England.

"The sole point of this letter," wrote Matthew Norgate from the recesses of the Savage Club in St. James's Street, "Is the date of its foot."

Norgate's point not to home it too finely, is that said date written numerically reads the same backward as forward-27-7-72. To some Englishmen, it seems, such things still matter. Norgate wrote, hardly pausing for breath:

"Apart from the three rather less pleasing palindromes arising on the 27th of the 8th, 9th and life menths of this year, today's is the last palindromic date until 18-1-81, when I shall of course write to you again, unless I wait until the even more pleasing 18-8-31 and unless I am by then no longer in a position to be .. Your obedient servent,
